

LETTER OF RECOMMENDATION FOR LTA(NS) JUSTIN CHEE

Lieutenant (LTA) (NS) Justin Chee served as the Admin Officer for Basic Military Training Center School 3. His scope of work involved managing human resource administration for up to 1000 personnel. His responsibilities involved ensuring that the servicemen's deployment, welfare, and disciplinary-related matters were managed in alignment to the Human Resource Audit framework. It is testament to his leadership and management skills that the unit has consistently achieved strong performance for HR Audits. In addition to his primary job scope, he also supported BMTC to organise our large scale events which are conducted each quarter - our Graduation Exercise 24km route march and Graduation Parade which spans 4000 soldiers and 16000 guests.

Throughout his time in School 3, LTA (NS) Justin Chee acquired a variety of skill sets. In his primary scope of work, he became intimately familiar with HR administration and management matters. LTA Justin also managed disciplinary matters, where he would initiate investigation reports for incidents in the unit and subsequently recommend to the unit commander or the Army's manpower department for concurrence on punishments meted out to servicemen. He was intimately familiar with disciplinary guidelines and the associated punishment framework. He would then work closely with SAF Court Martial Centre, Military Police and Detention Barracks, and Singapore Prisons as he managed the transfer of servicemen between these entities when they were subjected to military or civilian punishment. He is also intimately familiar with the military justice system and has defended several servicemen in court and to mitigate their sentences on their behalf. LTA Justin also ensured that the welfare and well-being of the NSFs were managed well. He would diligently ensure that their promotions and welfare benefits were accorded in a timely manner. Specifically, he would ensure that soldiers who had suffered injuries would be accorded their rightful support in terms of service injury reimbursement for subsequent medical treatment beyond their service in the SAF. LTA Justin also ensured that the soldiers were sent for courses in a timely manner so that they could be deployed for operational duties. Due to his effort, the unit performed well when subjected to audits for operational standby duties. Given his strong performance in the unit, he was promoted at the earliest opportunity.

Throughout his tour of duty as an Admin Officer, he has consistently demonstrated the ability to think critically about issues that he is confronted with and can always be counted upon to propose recommendations to his manpower officer and unit commander. LTA Justin Chee can also be counted upon to deputise for his School 2IC, both in garrison, in operations and in key meetings, which is a reflection of his maturity and ability. LTA Justin has a strong work ethic. He would often be found working late through the night and even through weekends. He has a strong sense of responsibility towards his soldiers in his manpower branch and the unit. Despite demanding such high standards, his staff are all loyal to him and they work hard to achieve the outcomes and tasks. It is indicative of his ability to inspire loyalty and commitment from his subordinates.

Beyond his primary scope of work, LTA Justin Chee supported the unit for several BMTC large scale events as the secretariat for the executive committee. This is akin to the role for National Day Parade secretariat, where he is required to string all elements of the Graduation Parade together, spanning guest management, parade management, logistics, security etc. He would also manage control of operations for such events, tracking the fulfilment of critical events akin to a cue master. He was also responsible for supporting the establishment of a Recovery unit in Basic Military Training Center, to enable soldiers to recover and rehabilitate from their injuries and be diverted to the next available course. He also made the necessary administrative arrangements to facilitate their dispersal to the next units and help them better assimilate to their future roles. He also manages NSmen administrative matters, and played a critical role in securing manpower resource by actively recruiting NSFs to be employed on short-term contract stints in the Singapore Armed Force. He also cultivates a strong sense of commitment to his development and growth and sought out opportunities to deepen his professional military competencies. He volunteered to be an Assistant Ops officer for the 24th Singapore Infantry Brigade during a milestone exercise, and performed admirably despite his lack of experience.

Beyond his ability to implement and execute actions well on the ground, LTA Justin has also demonstrated that he has a heart for his men. He has led them well, inspired their commitment and growth. He has contributed to their positive National Service experience. His willingness to commit his own personal time to undertake additional work which could positively impact other people's lives is indicative of his desire to improve the world, one step at a time. LTA Justin's strongest quality is his sense of altruism and compassion for his peers, resilience in the face of great and immense difficulty and natural leadership ability. He has been a true asset to Basic Military Training Center.
